NEW CARLOS.

ARRIVAL OF THE PRETENDER TO THE SPANISH THRONE.

New York, Aug. 26.—[Special.]—Don Carlos, the direct representative of the Spanish line of the Bourbons and pretender to the throne now occupied by the Queen Isabella, arrived in this country by steamer from Havre, the first spot and one of the first days of the month of September, and proceeded to this city. His visit is purely one of pleasure, and he is accompanied by his wife, who makes all arrangements as to hotels and places of amusement, and possesses more sense of one of the other than is usually found in the wife of a Spanish Prince. The Duke of Montpensier, under which designation Don Carlos is traveling, is the husband of the Princess Isabella, sister of the Queen of Spain, and is the son of Louis Philippe, the late King of the French. He is a man of about 40 years of age, and is a brother of the Count de Paris, who is now in this country, and who is the grandson of Louis Philippe. The Duke of Montpensier was married to the Princess Isabella, sister of the Queen of Spain, in 1846, and was at that time considered the most eligible match in Europe. The Queen of Spain was married to Don Francisco de Assisi, a cousin, and the

OUR CATTLE IN EUROPE

Synopsis of the Recent Labors of the Special Cattle Commission.

Mr. Gardner Delavan Dr. and His Associates Have Removed Erroneous Prejudices.

Regulations on American Live Stock to Be Shortly Done Away With.

Interesting Recital of the Methods by Which Much Good Was Accomplished.

Mr. J. B. Sanborn, of this city, returned yesterday from a three months' visit to Europe, where he had been on a Special Commissioner of the United States Government to inquire into the causes affecting the cattle diseases. The principal object of Mr. Sanborn's visit was to confer with the British authorities relative to the restrictions placed by Great Britain on the importation of live cattle from the United States, and to induce a relaxation of what, if those restrictions if possible, he was able to inquire into the matter of contagious diseases among the cattle of Europe, with a view to ascertain what the Government Regulations of Europe, and all the principal cattle-growers in Europe, from the center of the richest districts of cattle to the ports and Canada, it would be most desirable to inspect their cattle, and to investigate as to the possibility of disease properties in the European diseases, affecting European cattle, and all other matters generally affecting the interests of the United States.

THE CATTLE COMMISSION.

Mr. Sanborn is a member of the Treasury Cattle Commission appointed several months ago, the other members of which are Prof. Gray, of the Cornell University, and Dr. Trudeau, of Boston. The duties of this commission were to inquire into the contagious diseases affecting cattle, to arrange the principles of the Treasury Department relating to the importation of cattle, and to report to the Secretary of the Treasury relating to the same.

THE SPECIAL MISSION.

In regard to the particular mission to the European countries, Mr. Sanborn says that it was not until after the Commission had been appointed that the Secretary of the Treasury decided to send a Special Commission to Europe. The Commission was then reorganized, and Mr. Sanborn was appointed Special Commissioner to Europe, with instructions to visit the principal cattle districts of Europe, and to report to the Secretary of the Treasury relating to the same.

[illegible] Mr. Sanborn left this city on the 1st of May, and returned on the 1st of August. He visited Liverpool, London, Glasgow, Edinburgh, Aberdeen, Dublin, Belfast, Cork, Queenstown, Limerick, Manchester, Birmingham, Leeds, Sheffield, Hull, Newcastle, Carlisle, Preston, Chester, Shrewsbury, Hereford, Gloucester, Bristol, Exeter, Plymouth, Portsmouth, Southampton, Brighton, Canterbury, Dover, Ramsgate, Margate, Rochester, Chatham, Sheerness, Maidstone, Tunbridge, Reading, Oxford, Cambridge, Peterborough, Lincoln, Nottingham, Derby, Leicester, Northampton, Rugby, Coventry, Warwick, Stratford-on-Avon, Worcester

AN OPEN SECRET AMONG THE LADIES

The brilliant, lustrous Hair of Complexion for which ladies derive are chiefly attributed, and all who will take the trouble may secure them. These remedies, including Lyon's Kathairon, Lyon's Sulphur Soap, Lyon's Magnolia Balm and Lyon's Patent Curling Fluid, are sold by all druggists. The Kathairon is the most popular hair dressing, containing, in addition to the ingredients which promote a luxuriant growth, Quinine, Glycerine, Tar, Bayberry, Jaborandi, Cantharides, Sulphur, Perfume, &c., &c. It softens the hair, keeps it in curl in the most humid weather, prevents dandruff, and every imperfection of the scalp. Be careful to ask for Lyon's Kathairon, and see that you get it. The others are humbugs and an outrage that no druggist should be allowed to sell you.

Chicagos, 13; Metropolitans, 12.

The home nine played a game of ball at the West Side Park yesterday afternoon, and by a score of thirteen runs to twelve defeated the New York nine for their championship honors. The Chicagos took the lead in the first inning, and by a series of three and four scores Goldsmith's gentlemen were finally beaten. Gunson also took part in a match game of ball, but his club was defeated by the Chicago Reserves. The Metropolitans are accordingly left the champions of the West, but the Chicagos are not satisfied with the result, and will endeavor to regain their laurels on the home grounds. The Chicagos won the toss and went to the bat first. Dalrymple was the first man out, Gore following suit. Williamson and Anson then went to the front, and by a series of clean hits and base runs succeeded in scoring seven runs. Williamson was finally thrown out at first by Richardson, and Anson was left on the base. Burns, Goldsmith, and Flint followed in order, and the Chicagos were retired with seven runs to their credit. The Metropolitans then went to the bat, and Mills, Richardson, and Mayer were disposed of in short order. Orr, Gore, and Hatfield then made their appearance

Great Changes in Its Religious Condition—Growth of Mental Freedom.

Loss of Respect for the Priests, and the Cause of It.

(From G. S. Lowe's Book of European Travels.)—The church is no longer a power in Rome—that is, in anything like the subject it was. A Greek once said the Pope and the church of which he was the head was as great in Rome. It had its own creed, its own laws, its convictions, its consciences, its control the masters, it controlled the possessions, and stood with a power never attained by that of the Czar. Its power was paramount and unchallenged.

Before a purely religious city there was no distinguished corner to a religious man. The city was devoted with priceless associations, and religion for the training of priests. Its interest was considered except that one, supposedly an exception, was devoted as special object to that one thing. It was the interest of the priests to keep Rome as a religious community, and to make nothing in the city or Papal dominions that would draw from its shrines and sanctuaries. Rome was the most progressive, the living, the most interesting and attractive city in Europe and every other land of churches.

The most significant evidence of the decay of the power of the church over the people of Italy is the increase in crime in the capital of Catholicism, which, added to the decrease in religious belief, points to the conclusion that the people are losing their faith. The number of crimes, and the proportion of indictments against the higher classes of society, are the most conclusive evidence of this decay. There is scarcely a day in which there is not a murder committed, and the number of indictments against the higher classes of society, which are the most conclusive evidence of a decay of religious belief, are more numerous than those of the time of which we have no record. The number of murders in Rome is to the population more than double that of London, and the number of indictments against the higher classes of society is a conclusive evidence of the decay of religious belief. The number of murders in Rome is to the population more than double that of London, and the number of indictments against the higher classes of society is a conclusive evidence of the decay of religious belief.

The decadence of the power of the church is also shown by the struggle of the priests to retain the power they have over the people. In fact, the struggle is the most conclusive evidence of the decay of religious belief. The number of murders in Rome is to the population more than double that of London, and the number of indictments against the higher classes of society is a conclusive evidence of the decay of religious belief.
